Each author must fill out a separate copy of this form.

Only persons who meet authorship criteria should be listed as authors. All authors should meet the criteria listed above (Sections I – III). Each author must indicate which of the following aspects of the work he or she participated in by checking the box(es) that apply. It is not necessary for each author to check each of the boxes.

For a manuscript authored by a group, and multicenter trials: The corresponding author should clearly indicate the preferred citation and identify all individual authors and the group name. All authors should fulfill the authorship criteria above; otherwise, the other group members are listed in the acknowledgement section of the manuscript. The group should identify the individuals who accept direct responsibility for the manuscript. The editors will ask these individuals to complete journal-specific author and conflict-of-interest disclosure forms.

Acknowledgements: Contributors are individuals who have contributed to the study but do not meet the authorship criteria. All contributors should be listed in the acknowledgement section of the manuscript. Examples of those who might be acknowledged include a person who provided purely technical help, writing assistance, or a department chair who provided only general support. Corresponding authors should declare whether they had assistance with study design, data collection, data analysis, or manuscript preparation. If such assistance was available, the authors should disclose the identity of the individuals who provided this assistance and the entity that supported it in the published article. Financial and material support should also be acknowledged. Groups of persons who have contributed materially to the paper but whose contributions do not justify authorship may be listed under such headings as “clinical investigators” or “participating investigators”, and their function or contribution should be described (i.e., “served as scientific advisors”, “critically reviewed the study proposal”, “collected data”, or “provided and cared for study patients”). Because readers may infer their endorsement of the data and conclusions, these persons must give written permission to be acknowledged.
